

Hawkwood Books Newsletter

October 2017

Circle Cinnabar is the third in The Tubemice Series.

A modern Christmas carol.

Isbn: 978-1-908577-71-9

ISSN:2515-2858

RRP: £5.99

3 BOOKS, MANY MICE

Tiffani described everything as she expected it to be. Cinnabar couldn't help but comment on the lines scratched into the walls. It was only when she'd pointed them out that Tiffani saw them, too. They gasped, because as they stared, the etchings appeared to take shape. They weren't moving, not actually shifting, but they seemed suddenly to make sense, to be things the two Goldworlders recognised.

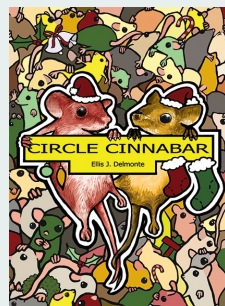

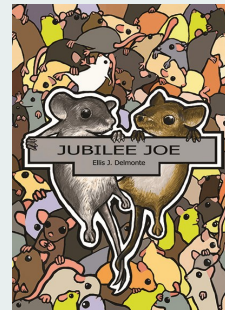

Book 1: Piccadilly Mitzie

Book 2: Jubilee Joe

Book 3: Circle Cinnabar

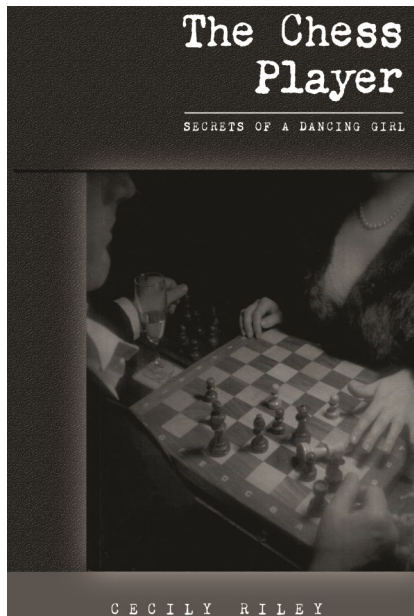

The Tubemice Series is now sold by the London Transport Museum in Covent Garden.

Covent Garden Piazza
London WC2E 7BB

Hawkwood Books Newsletter

October 2017

Lucy Hall is a burlesque dancer in 1930s London. But not all the time. Off duty, she helps the police in their investigations—in more ways than one.

An adult read with mature themes. First in the Secrets of a Dancing Girl Series.

The Chess Player

by Cecily Riley

Isbn: 978-1-908577-68-9

ISSN: 2515-1568

SECRETS OF A DANCING GIRL

Meanwhile, the girls, incapable of rousing me from my daze, had gone back to their gossip and vacuous hypotheses. More importantly, they returned to preparations for that night's show. Seeing them sit down at their dressing tables or putting on their feathery or sequined costumes, I started mechanically to do the same, applying foundation to my face, spreading eye shadow on my eyelids and running the baton de rouge over my lips.

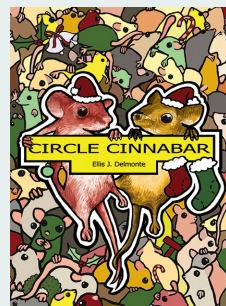

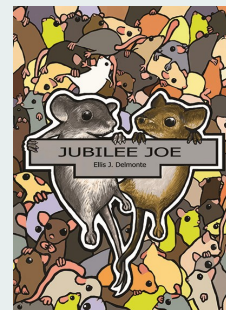

Book 1: The Chess Player

Book 2: A Mouthful of Bread

Book 3: One of Us

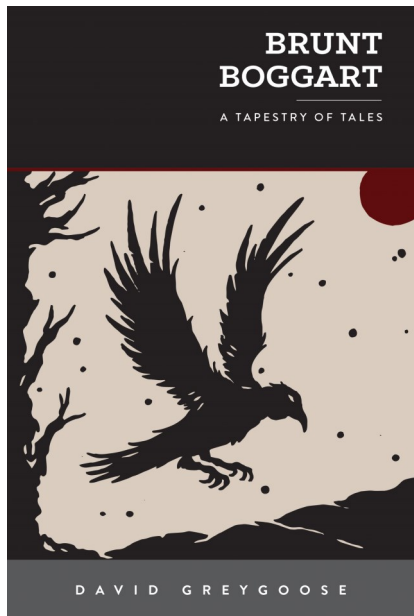

The Tubemice Series is now sold by the London Transport Museum in Covent Garden.

Covent Garden Piazza
London WC2E 7BB

Hawkwood Books Newsletter

October 2017

Last chance to buy this edition! David's unique book has been bought by Pushkin Press. Due for release next year.

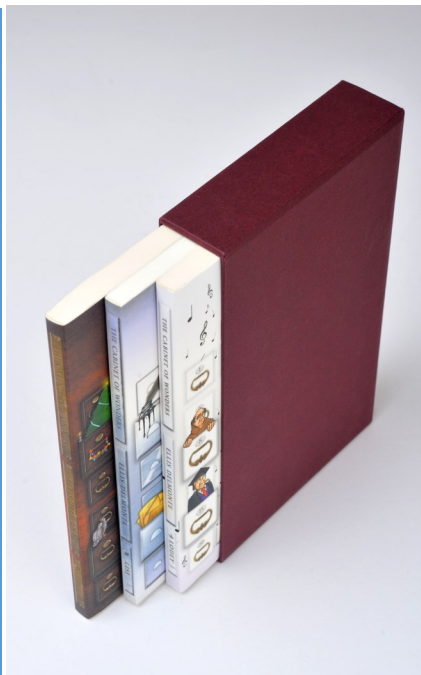

Brunt Boggart
by David Greygoose
Isbn: 978-1-908577-44-3
RRP: £8.99

3 BOOKS, 1 CABINET

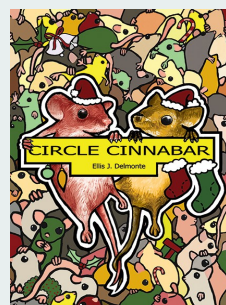

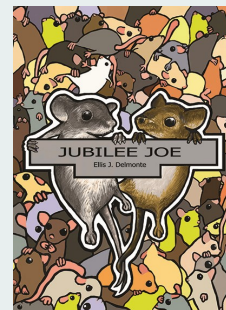

We all need help at times but for some children it comes in the most unexpected way.

He was admiring what had to be the final layer, it was so beautiful, swimming with colours that seemed to shift and shimmer and run into each other like liquid light. You just knew there was nothing beneath it but the mysterious present.

Book 1: Philip
Book 2: Lisi
Book 3: Louey

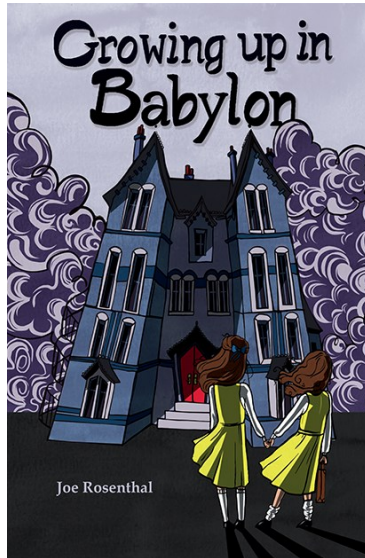

The Tubemice Series is now sold by the London Transport Museum in Covent Garden.

Covent Garden Piazza
London WC2E 7BB

Hawkwood Books Newsletter

October 2017

Ten years after the end of the Second World War, many families are still affected by the conflict. Kitty and Kay are twins from one such family, their parents hospitalised and their loving, Jewish home, for a while, a distant memory. They find themselves in an unfamiliar world, making new friends, fending off enemies and learning about both the gentler and crueller sides of life.

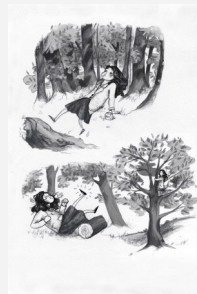

Growing up in Babylon is a thoughtful, provocative story, a tale of kinship, friendship and love. For readers aged 11 and over.

isbn: 978-1-908577-62-7

RRP: £6.99

March 2017

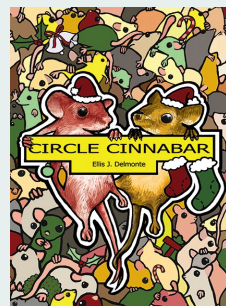

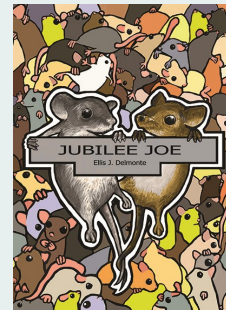

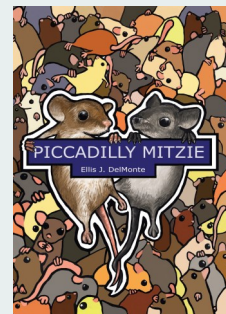

Although not part of the book, artist Ellie Roe has created a series of illustrations available online. Here are some of them:

Ellie can be contacted through her website HERE

The Tubemice Series is now sold by the London Transport Museum in Covent Garden.

Covent Garden Piazza
London WC2E 7BB