Genre: Younger children

Charming stories about the adventures of Pekie the Pekinese and Danie the Great Dane, loyal friends of The Miller Family. To be read aloud to children from 5 to 8 years of age.

Lucy Miller knows a secret. She wandered into Daddy's garage one day to find Danie, her beautiful, great silky dog, neatly parking her bicycle, with little Pekie sitting in the basket. You see, they look to all the world like normal dogs, but they are not normal at all – they have a very special gift. They can speak to humans.

Not everyone can hear them, mind you, only children, and adults who are not too distracted or haven't lost the magic of childhood.

The Author

Sarah Horne is a writer from the South West of England. She gained a 2:1 in English at the University of Greenwich in 2004, and has been writing ever since she was 11 years old. She enjoys writing about fantastical things and loves nature, coffee and cats. This is her first book.

A few of these stories – and many more that I sadly cannot remember – were read aloud to me by my dear Daddy, many years ago when I was a child, at bedtime. I've typed up the stories he'd written down, but the rest I've added myself. I hope they can bring delight to other children just as they did with me.
